The new tools of economic development and creation of sustainable and healthy communities in post-Redevelopment California took center stage at the Cal-ALHFA's recent conference "Reinvention: 2014". Taking guidance from ULI's December 2013 report After Redevelopment. New Tools and Strategies to Promote Economic Development and Build Sustainable Communities, Libby Seifel joined fellow report contributors to present on innovative techniques being used locally, regionally, and at the state level to stimulate housing and mixed use development. Through focused presentations and lively round table discussion, their session "Reinventing Redevelopment: New Tools for Housing and Sustainable Communities" explored recommendations and strategies posited in the ULI report.
